SYNERGIC THEATER CREATIVE PROCESS WORKSHOP...

a non-technical, non-theoretical, non-political, non-judgemental, culturally-transcendent approach to creating with movement, image and sound resources...

for dancers, actors, musicians, painters, media artists and other creatively-afflicted people.

First, playful and provocative exercises release the participants' ability to see sounds, hear images, move inside out, speak upside down and generally encounter the raw material of life as it really is, was or might be. Then, unsolvable problems catalyze individual and collective solutions, generating original forms directly from the content at hand (ie, summarize the entire history of the universe in a 30" sound piece; animate the result with movement, framed in images).

Toys include costumes, props, fabrics, lights, shadows, time, space, minds, bodies and anything else lying around the exterior and interior landscape.

The result is a renewed sensibility and fresh perspective that empowers the imagination. The effect is usually permanent.
